VISITORS SET MEETING WITH FORESTRY STAFF

MISSOULA---

More than a dozen forestry and resource leaders from six Montana communities will meet Friday with the University of Montana School of Forestry staff.

The meeting with the Forestry Board of Visitors and guests will include a dialogue between faculty and the board on the "Changing Role of the School of Forestry." Dr. Arnold W. Bolle, dean of forestry, said the dialogue would examine how resource organizations utilize the education of a forester and how a forester's education might be improved to make him more valuable to resource organizations.

The Friday morning session will include talks by forestry staff members. Robert W. Lange will discuss the forestry school enrollment as a changing picture, Dean Bolle will talk on building and campus plans;

Dr. Richard D. Taber will talk about the Center for Environmental Biology, Dr. Robert F. Wambach will discuss the senior sequence in forestry and Prof. Mel Morris and Dr. Lee Eddleman will talk on the range management curriculum.

The board has selected three new members: John Anderson, superintendent of Yellowstone National Park; W.R. Brickerton, manager of Van Even Co., Missoula; and Jim Brown, manager of Pack River Lumber Co., Spokane.

Several guests will sit with the board. The guests include Land Lindberg, Greenough rancher; John Lucas, Forestry Sciences Lab, Missoula; James Linne, chief, division Resource Program Management, Bureau of Land Management, Billings; Don Melgren, Missoula district BLM manager; and Larry Osburnsen, Soil Conservation Service, Missoula.
